Our Global Specialist Staffing businesses operate across the UK, US and Europe, and provide international support to our customers through the provision of specialist workers for permanent, temporary, contract and fixed-price work directly, or in partnership with one of our Managed Service businesses in the portfolio.

Our dedicated teams build better businesses through the provision of scientists, IT programmers, telecommunications engineers and digital specialists. Our integrated model and collaborative culture enable an agile, flexible approach that can meet our customers' needs on a global scale.

Our Global Specialist Staffing brands include the technology brand Lorien and our life sciences brand, SRG.

WHY CHOOSE A GLOBAL SPECIALIST?

Specialist recruitment agencies build lasting relationships with candidates that have the relevant experience, skill-set, and job history you need. They apply their expertise and niche skill-set to attract, select and retain the best permanent, contingent and contract talent.

Companies looking for specific skill-sets, expertise and market knowledge benefit from the niche pool of candidates and a Specialist Staffing recruiter's focus - they'll receive expert advice that only comes with Specialist knowledge.

A global specialist recruiter would provide the reassurance customers with an international footprint need - they'd know exactly the skills and expertise the client requires for the role but with the added benefit of international, specialised knowledge.

Global Specialists will be aware of projects that companies are working on across businesses around the world, countries where people might be moving to and from, and where the best people are currently working.
